NSC BRIEFING

1 July 1954

Background. A Soviet radio broadcast of 29 June charged "that American military aircraft have systematically been flying over merchant ships sailing in the waters of the Far East, particularly in the area of Formosa."

The Soviets citing five specific instances, charged that this was U. S. reconnaissance operations against the movement of Soviet merchant ships.

Moscow said that such action "by American aircraft represent an arbitrary violation of freedom of the high seas and show a complete disregard by U. S. military authorities of international law."
